Spotlight: Jake

Jake had experienced homelessness on and off as a child, but after settling into a comfortable career as a financial analyst, homelessness was a distant past. Health issues slowly turned Jake's life around, leading Jake to lose his job, and soon, his home. After a period of instability, Jake came to Our House's Career Center to find work again and checked into our Shelter. The Career Center helped Jake start to put his life back together - helping with job search, getting back on health insurance, and transportation. Jake's ultimate goal is to get back into the financial field, but not having a driver's license is a big barrier to employment at many places. For now, Jake has a steady job at Goodwill where he works as a production assistant, and the Career Center provides monthly bus passes for transportation. Jake is almost halfway to his savings goal to get his driver's license reinstated and have his own vehicle again. Jake has enjoyed taking classes offered by our mental health team to work on his interpersonal skills and regain confidence in his abilities!
